

Mastering Verb Forms: Going to (Place) vs Going Gerund

Student Name: _____

Class: _____

Due Date: _____

Introduction

Welcome to this worksheet on mastering verb forms, specifically "going to (place)" and "going gerund". This worksheet is designed for 13-year-old B1 level students to practice and reinforce their understanding of these two often-confused verb forms.

Read the following sentences and identify whether they use "going to (place)" or "going gerund":

1. I am going to the store.
2. I love going swimming.
3. She is going to the movies.
4. He enjoys going hiking.

Answer Key

1. going to (place)
2. going gerund
3. going to (place)
4. going gerund

Complete the following sentences with either "going to (place)" or "going gerund":

1. By next year, I _____ (go) to the beach for my summer vacation.
2. She _____ (go) shopping with her friends this weekend.
3. I am _____ (go) to the gym to work out.
4. They love _____ (go) skiing in the winter.

Complete the following sentences with your own ideas:

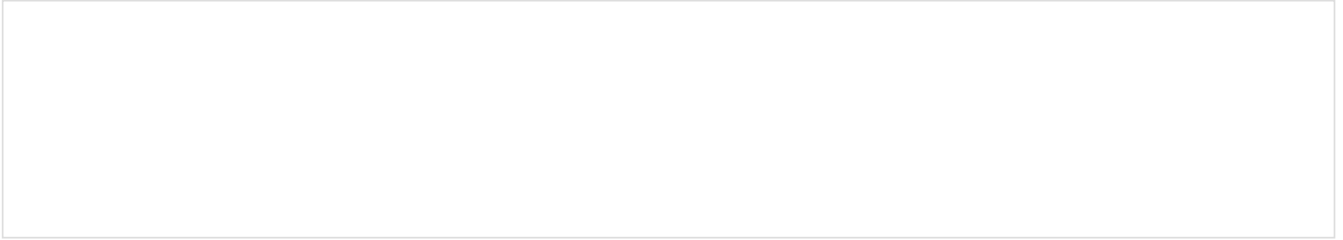

1. I am going to _____ (place) for my birthday.
2. My favorite hobby is _____ (gerund).
3. Next weekend, I am going to _____ (place) with my family.
4. I enjoy _____ (gerund) with my friends.

Identify and correct the errors in the following sentences:

1. I am going store.
2. She is going to shopping.
3. He loves going to run.
4. They are going to beach.

Describe the following pictures using "going to (place)" or "going gerund":

[Insert pictures of people engaging in various activities, such as going to the store, going hiking, etc.]

Create a short dialogue between two friends making plans for the weekend. Use both "going to (place)" and "going gerund" correctly.

Write a short story (about 150-200 words) that includes at least three instances of "going to (place)" and two instances of "going gerund".

Take a short quiz to test your understanding of "going to (place)" and "going gerund".

1. What is the difference between "going to (place)" and "going gerund"?
2. Which sentence uses "going to (place)" correctly: "I am going to the store" or "I am going store"?
3. Which sentence uses "going gerund" correctly: "I love going swimming" or "I love to swim"?

Answer Key

1. "Going to (place)" refers to moving to a specific location, while "going gerund" refers to engaging in an activity.
2. "I am going to the store"
3. "I love going swimming"

Reflect on what you have learned about "going to (place)" and "going gerund". How can you apply this knowledge in your everyday conversations?

Congratulations on completing this worksheet! You have now mastered the difference between "going to (place)" and "going gerund". Remember to practice using these verb forms correctly in your everyday conversations.