

Introduction

Welcome to our grammar adventure! In this welcome pack, we will explore the exciting world of verbs and discover the secret to forming the third person singular with regular verbs by adding s. This fundamental grammar rule is essential for clear and accurate communication, and we will have fun learning it together!

What is a Verb?

A verb is a word that shows action or a state of being. Verbs are the building blocks of sentences, and they help us to describe what is happening, has happened, or will happen. Can you think of some examples of verbs? Write them down in the space below.

Forming the Third Person Singular

To form the third person singular with regular verbs, we need to add s to the base form of the verb. For example:

- I walk (first person singular)
- He walks (third person singular)
- She walks (third person singular)

Complete the sentences below by adding the correct form of the verb:

1. My friend _____ (play) soccer every Saturday.
2. The dog _____ (run) quickly around the park.
3. The teacher _____ (write) on the blackboard.
