- What would I change?
- Next steps for instruction?

Overview

In today's fast-paced, interconnected work environments, the ability to share information effectively with team members is crucial for success. This lesson plan is designed for professionals, aged 30, who are looking to enhance their collaboration skills, particularly in sharing their TWA+ (Technical Writing for Applications) experience.

Background Information

Effective team sharing is grounded in Communication Theory, which emphasizes the importance of clear, concise, and respectful exchange of information. In a professional setting, this involves not only conveying technical knowledge but also doing so in a manner that is engaging, easy to understand, and relevant to the team's objectives.

Teaching Tips

Preparation is Key:

- Encourage participants to prepare their thoughts and experiences beforehand
- Provide guiding questions and prompts to facilitate preparation

Active Listening:

- Emphasize the importance of not just sharing but also listening
- Encourage participants to ask questions and seek clarification

Feedback:

- Incorporate opportunities for constructive feedback
- Encourage participants to reflect on their own performance and set goals for improvement

Differentiation Strategies

Visual Aids:

- Use diagrams, flowcharts, or mind maps to help visualize the sharing process and key points
- Provide handouts with guiding questions and prompts

Group Discussions:

- Divide participants into smaller groups to discuss their experiences
- Encourage peer-to-peer learning and reduce intimidation

Reflective Journaling:

- Encourage participants to reflect on their sharing experience, what they learned, and how they can improve
- Provide prompts and guiding questions to facilitate reflection

Assessment Opportunities

Peer Feedback Forms:

- Provide participants with peer feedback forms to provide feedback on each other's sharing
- Encourage constructive feedback and suggestions for improvement

Self-Assessment Questionnaires:

- Have participants reflect on their own performance, setting goals for future improvements
- Provide prompts and guiding questions to facilitate self-assessment

Group Project:

- Assign a group project that requires effective sharing and collaboration to achieve a common goal
- Assess teamwork and communication skills, as well as the final product
