

Introduction to Imperative and Exclamatory Sentences

Read the following introduction and answer the questions that follow:

Imperative and exclamatory sentences are two types of sentences that can add excitement and variety to your writing and speech. Imperative sentences give commands or instructions, while exclamatory sentences express strong emotions or feelings.

1. What is the main difference between imperative and exclamatory sentences?

2. Can you think of a situation where you would use an imperative sentence?

3. Can you think of a situation where you would use an exclamatory sentence?

Imperative Sentences

Read the following examples and build your own imperative sentences using the given words:

Imperative sentences give commands or instructions. They often start with a verb and can be polite or impolite, depending on the context.

- Verb: run, jump, read
- Adjective: quickly, slowly, carefully
- Noun: book, ball, door

Example: Run quickly to the door!

Exclamatory Sentences

Read the following examples and build your own exclamatory sentences using the given words:

Exclamatory sentences express strong emotions or feelings. They often start with what or how and end with an exclamation mark.

- What, how
- Adjective: amazing, beautiful, exciting
- Noun: day, view, party

Example: What a beautiful day!

Sentence Variation

Sort the following sentences into imperative, exclamatory, or declarative:

1. Close the door!

2. What a beautiful day!

3. The sun is shining.

Imperative Sentence Practice

Write your own imperative sentences using the following prompts:

1. Tell a friend to do something.

2. Give instructions for a game.

3. Ask someone to help you with a task.

Exclamatory Sentence Practice

Write your own exclamatory sentences using the following prompts:

1. Express excitement about a upcoming event.

2. Describe a beautiful scene.

3. React to surprising news.

Sentence Building Challenge

Build your own sentences using a mix of imperative, exclamatory, and declarative sentence types.

Example: Close the door! What a beautiful day! The sun is shining.

Role-Play

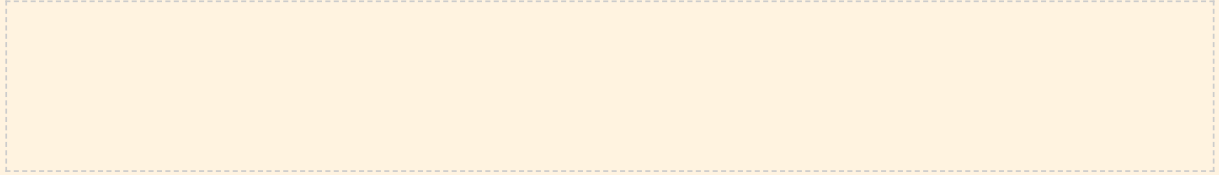

Role-play a scenario where you have to give instructions or express emotions using imperative and exclamatory sentences.

Example: You are a teacher giving instructions to your students.

Sentence Variation Game

Play a game where you have to identify and create imperative and exclamatory sentences.

Example: Sentence Scavenger Hunt

A large dashed rectangular box, likely intended for students to write their answers or observations during the scavenger hunt.

Writing Activity

Write a short story using a mix of imperative, exclamatory, and declarative sentence types.

Example: Write a story about a character who gives instructions and expresses emotions.

Conclusion

Congratulations! You have completed the worksheet on creating exciting sentence variations with imperative and exclamatory sentences.

Remember to practice using these sentence types in your writing and speech to add interest and variety.

